stated that they are only counting letters that have arrived.

They are equipped to receive only 150 letters through their service per hour. The spokesman however, added that they have a backlog of 1,700 more.

NEW STALLING TECHNIQUE
TRIED BY RED P.O.Ws

Forty Communist P.O.W. found a new way to stall repatriation procedures.

When asked whether they wanted to go home or not, they asked U.N. officials for more time to "think it over".

WASHINGTON - The latest reports regarding response to Sen. McCarthy's critique to the President speech has the experts confused.

Sen. McCarthy asked the American public in a nation-wide address to send letters to the White House backing him on a tougher Foreign Policy for allies dealing with Red China.

McCarthy claims that in the first thirty hours after his speech 2087 letters had arrived.

That is up to midnight Friday night. Sen. McCarthy did not disclose the source from which he received his figures.

A White House spokesman told reporters that only 1500 letters had actually arrived. The White House

WASHINGTON - The Federal Grand Jury indicted former State Department economist, Val R. Lawin on three counts of perjury.

Lawin denied the three charges.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy cited Lawin's case in 1950 in a Senate speech and subsequently named him a security risk in 1951.

NEWSPAPER STRIKE RACES IN NEW YORK - END NOT YET IN SIGHT
(Special to AM)

NEW YORK - In an interview with AM reporters, Frank Dougherty School Editor of the New York Times said that the engraver's strike was far from being settled. He said, "They (the engravers) are getting 1.90 an hour. It is about time that management take a stand otherwise there will be no end as to their demands." Dougherty continued stating, two more metropolitan newspapers had ceased publication since the beginning of the strike.

The basis issue evolves over the wage dispute; the engravers asking for a pay raise of $5.75 a week, while management offered $3.70.

If the issue is not settled in court tomorrow, the newspaper will have the case arbitrated.

LATE FLASH

Negotiations have been suspended by both sides awaiting mediation tomorrow morning in the Engraver's strike which has halted metropolitan newspaper production.

WEATHER BULLETIN FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES

The weather will be continued cloudy throughout tomorrow with intermittent showers.
