Three Students Write After Opposition
Against Sept. 17

Editor's Note—The September 17 issue of The Bardian contained an editorial stating a strong opposition to the founding of a cooperative store on campus. We were strongly provoked by the editorial and have written this article to set the record straight. We believe that the majority of students Body agreed with the general criticisms of that editorial. With the editorial was a plan submitted by the staff for a college store which would be composed of the students, involving all of the students on campus.

KGX Leads With Nineteen
Greater Percentage Than Last Year

The climax of the running season was marked by an unusually large delegation to the several fraternal orders. This interest was considerably greater than last year, and was correspondingly favorably received by the members of the fraternities participating in the contests. The three fraternity members attracted the attention of the fraternities and the officers of the running season were as follows:

For the Ruculion Society: David Brunck, Scott Bates, and John H. E. Miller.
For the Huxley Society: Robert Fink, John H. R. Brown, and John Miller.
For the Scientific Society: William McQuade, Robert Fink, and Joseph Hunstiger.

The Red Barn To Open Here Week Of November 4

Benefit Performance At Vassar For Lincoln Center Settlement House Under Consideration

"The Red Barn" by Ennnet Lavestring will open in the Bard Theatre this Friday at 8:00 p.m., at a price of 50 cents. A portion of the proceeds will go to the Lincoln Center Settlement House, a new organization of the New York City Department of Health.

"The Red Barn" is a comedy written by Ennnet Lavestring, a famous playwright. It is set in a small New England town and tells the story of a young man who returns home after many years to find that his father has died and his mother is ill. The boy is forced to take over the farm and try to make a living.

STUART CHASE, ECONOMIST, SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT

Will Speak On "The Economy Of Abundance"

Stuart Chase who is to speak before the Student Body tonight on the subject "The Economy of Abundance" is the well-known author of many outstanding books on economics, a speaker of internationl reputation, one of the leaders of The Labor Bureau, Inc. and a co-founder of that interesting organization known as the Consumers Research Bureau.

From a small group of private individuals, who called themselves "The Consumers Research Bureau" in 1927, it has grown in a few years into a far-reaching national institution. Stuart Chase was one of the three activefigure s in the organization. He is its president, and together with P. J. Schlink, he founded and edited the Consumers Research Magazine. In 1932 he was responsible for the formation of the Consumers Research Bureau, which time other work has prevented him from active participation in the Bureau or the Magazine. He is a member of the editorial board, and as such, with the guidance of the editors, he is the one to whom the book is sent.

In connection with the work of the Consumers Research Bureau, Stuart Chase and P. J. Schlink have carried on the work of "the next book" in every issue of the magazine, and in this respect, the current issue is no exception. The book which has been announced is entitled "The Next Book." It is a book for the "next book" market, and it is the one which will be in print in the fall of the year.

琔 Old Manuscript To Be Shown At College Library

Original Drawings, Specifications
Of Gramophone

(loaned by Zalefskie Family)

An original manuscript of the Linsley's will be placed on exhibition shortly in the Hoffman Memorial Library. The document is the property of the Christian A. Zalefskie family and has been loaned to the college for a period of one year.

The work consists of the drawings, specifications, and patent rights of the "Chromophone," the first practical steamboat to be launched in the country. The illustrations in the manuscript are of special interest as they were all done by a skilled draughtsman with considerable dexterity, bearing out the fact that the inventor who had a patent for drawing.

In the interest of the fact that while Robert Fulton was in Europe to meet the American ambassador to France, Robert L. Insull, and to consult with the American Livonia family of Trelaw and the American banker of the "Chromophone," the British government, 33 feet long, 7 feet deep, and 18 feet wide. It was at August 17, 1807. It was the first practical steamboat to be launched in the country. The boat ran in the river and the vessel averaged five miles per hour.

Galloway Heads Bard Riding Club

At a recent meeting of the Riding and Driving Club George Galloway, 19, announced that he will be the new treasurer. At this meeting the president welcomed the new members of the club and discussed the day's activities. Driving is going to be included in the club's activities since there are a few cars and buggies available.

It is hoped that more students will join the club and take part in the activities.

HARVARD GEOLOGIST BALKS AT TEACHERS LOYALTY OATH BILL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (APR. 7) — Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, Harvard geologist professor, indicated that he would refuse to take the "loyalty oath" prescribed for teachers by the new Massachusetts law and would challenge the University to the faculty to sign it. He said he believed most Harvard professors would agree with him.

Dr. Mather characterized the oath bill as undemocratic and asked it be changed promptly. He said America for additional legislation and that it should be left to the states, churches and cultural institutions to handle the question of loyalty. The state officials have to be involved.

Twenty states now have laws requiring public teachers to take loyalty oaths, and on them applying to aliens as well as to citizens.

In a home game Thursday afternoon at 3:30, the Varsity Soccer team will open its season against Miami College, which ran through an undefeated season last year.

The West Coast club, without question, will prove the stronger of the two. The St. Stephens team has ever met.

But in the first half of the game, St. Stephens has announced a string of 32 victories, three draws, and one defeat. The finale is something to look forward to. On Tuesday, West Chester plays Cornell Normal, a comparatively young team; on Wednesday, they may by the suite of ten dollar memberships (twenty-four per cent of the Community license) and a small loan, the Store was able to operate as a cooperative during the third college year.

The Store is under the supervision of a Board of Directors consisting of six students, 2 faculty, 1 employee, and the college president and comptroller as ex-officio. Their duty is to employ the manager and student help. They are responsible to the trustees of the college for the efficient management of the Store. Our stock includes not only food and cigarettes, but also books, music, art supplies, drugs, stationery supplies, and sport equipment. Records are kept of the amount of each member’s purchase and the basis of these the Board of Directors can declare a yearly dividend.

In addition to the service which the Store provided the Community, the books showed an excess of income over expense large enough to declare a six per cent dividend in individual purchases. A larger dividend was not declared because the Board felt it expedient to expand certain departments of the Store with a portion of the amount.

We wish to express our interest in your problem—to welcome any questions and to offer any assistance we can give.

Most sincerely, head by Harvey Fite dominated the sculpture section. The plaster portrait, "Marcella," is a delicate and subtle handling of a beautifully shaped head. "Grief," while it has all the attributes of that emotion is anchored by the heavy build of the dragnet. Except from a direct front view, the fields create sharp dark and light lines that destroy the unity of the piece, they are rhythmic but they do not stay subordinate to the figure. On the other hand, the drapery of "West Wind" are light and blown by the wind and convey a sense of buoyancy. The "Furman," see Danta, is conceived as a solid mass and maintains that feeling by the elimination of detail. Helen Brand is a "La Verriere, has an interesting head of a Japanese girl in silver tissue. Her other sculpture, a terra cotta female nude, leaves the wholeness of the head. For the most part well-designed it loses a great deal of form from the introduction of out-of-scale units. Several other girls from Vassar had work entered at the various sections of the exhibition.

It is expected that several of the pieces will be in the exhibition to be held in the Bard Theatre Green Room concurrent with the "Red Barn."

The Bardian Refuses Federal Aid For Students

The Government Plans Control Over Education

CLINTON, N.Y., Oct. 16.—Fearing "class control of education by the government," Hamilton College at Clinton, where the administration has been known for years as a hotbed of non-partisan radicalism, has excluded Federal funds from the university's budget.

The college has had a longstanding tradition of non-partisan radicalism, and the administration has been known to be opposed to any form of government control over education. The decision to exclude Federal aid was a response to the concerns of the administration regarding the potential impact of government control on the university's governance and autonomy.

residents at the home of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, on the significance of Bard College.

"As a college in the educational system of a great urban university, Bard may well prove to be a pioneer in a movement which during the next generation will spread to various parts of the United States," Dr. Butler said.

"If a college is to attract the higher type of scholar and teacher for its service it must be ready to offer him scholarly companionship and a scholar's opportunity."

"This can rarely be done in a house of distant spaciousness, but it can readily be done if the country college be linked to an academic family not too far distant from contact with which it may receive inspiration and greatly increased opportunity."

"It may well be that we are on the point of witnessing a movement toward the fusion of the University and colleges, and that in different forms in the realm of the outstanding universities will become a center of inspiration to a group of nearly separate colleges, all of which will, while retaining their separate individuality, gain new strength and multiplied opportunity."

...but, after all is said and done, it's the cigarette itself that counts

...the question is, does it suit you?

Now, when it comes to a cigarette that will suit you... you want to think whether it's mild, you want to think about the taste

That Chesterfields are milder and taste better is no accident...

The farmer who grows the tobacco, the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder, every man who knows about leaf tobacco will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette.

In making Chesterfields we use mild ripe home-grown and Turkish tobaccos.
