MUMMERS ANNOUNCE NEW BILL

WILL PRODUCE THREE PLAYS AFTER CHRISTMAS RECESS

St. Stephen's dramatic society, The Mummers, whose past productions here have met with considerable success, have announced that shortly after Christmas they purpose to produce a bill of three one-act plays.

The plays have already been selected, the parts assigned, and rehearsals are to commence this week. The cast of characters for the productions shows that nearly all the Mummers who figured prominently in the three plays produced last spring are again to have parts. Herman Smith, whom the college well remembers as the lovely Violetta in Louise Saunder's, "Nave of Hearts," and Packard, will again assume the role of female impersonators. Other well-remembered names from the old list which appear again are: Myers, Titus, Richey, Craig and Crunden, the "Toffy" of "A Night At An Inn."

All three plays this time are comedies, two of them verging on the farcical in character, and one a comedy of a quieter and more subtle nature. For the first time here a translated play, one of Moliere's, is being attempted. It is perhaps his best one act comedy, "A Doctor In Spite of Himself,"—"Un Medecin Malgre Lui." The other two pieces are also by authors whose plays have not been given here before,—"Moonshine," by Arthur Hopkins, and "Lend Me Five Shillings," by J. M. Morton. Lord Dunsany is for the first time utterly neglected.

The plays will be coached as heretofore by both Professor Voorhees and President Bell. Moliere's and Hopkins' comedies will be under the care of Mr. Voorhees, while Dr. Bell will assume charge of the farce-comedy by Morton. As usual, the scene painting will be in the capable hands of the college artist, King, and the stage director will be Gifford.

Altogether, the choice of the plays and of the casts, as well as the degree of enthusiasm manifested, leaves nothing to be desired, and a repetition of past successes may confidently be expected. The casts read as follows:

A Doctor in Spite of Himself

Sganarelle, the doctor Gruver
Martine, his wife Packard
Robert, a countryman.....H. Simmonds
Valere, a lackey Parsell
Lucas, another lackey Voorhees
Lucinde, a lady H. Smith
A Nurse Rapallo

VARSITY CLOSES SEASON WITH A WIN

Defeats Strong Conn. Team in Exciting Game

The Varsity ended a highly successful season on Saturday, November 10, when it defeated the heavy Connecticut Agricultural College eleven in a hard-fought game at Storrs, Connecticut. As both teams had a powerful and well-developed aerial attack, the game was thrilling in the extreme. Both the Varsity and the Aggies scored touchdowns by this method, the other score coming from a line plunge by Deloria. The Varsity, which has been coming along fast during the last month, was at the height of its game. The line opened wide holes and proved strong on the defence. Forward passes were fast and well-timed. Good interference added many yards to the Varsity's end runs. Simmonds, at quarterback, playing his last game for the college, ran the team coolly at all times. Captain White's accurately placed punts gained many yards during the afternoon. Coffin and Judd in the line and Kilby in the back-field, all playing their last season with the Varsity, put up a great game. But in spite of, or rather along with, individual performances, it was, as always, the team working together that won this final game of the year. Captain White is to be congratulated on the way in which he handled the team during the season; coach Murry, on turning out a fighting Varsity that won five of its seven games. It is safe to say that the lineup that started Saturday's game, and which averages one hundred and sixty-three pounds, is one of the lightest, and not of the worst college teams in the East. The game in detail:

First Quarter

As Captain White lost the toss, the the Aggies chose to receive. Connecticut, running the ends, gained twenty-five yards on their first two plays. The Varsity line-men soon solved the Aggie plays, however; and the next two resulted in a ten yard loss, Wilson and Noble both throwing the runner far behind his line. When White, with the sun in his eyes, fumbled Connecticut's kick, an Aggie end recovered it, but the Farmers failed to gain and punted again. End runs by White and Kilby netted a first down, and another was soon added through the line. The Varsity failed to make the distance and White punted, the ball rolling out of bounds on the Aggie's ten yard line. A penalty gave Connecticut fifteen yards. Failing to gain on running plays, the Aggies attempted a pass which Deloria intercepted. Again the Varsity offense was stopped and Connecticut was forced to punt. Connecticut's second try at forward passing was intercepted by White. The period ended with the Varsity holding the ball on Connecticut's twenty yard line. The score at the end of the first period: St. Stephen's 0. Connecticut 0.

Second Quarter

Connecticut took the ball on downs and immediately punted out of danger. A pass to Noble gained ten yards and one to Wilson netted twenty-five. Again the Varsity failed to gain through the heavy Connecticut forwards and lost the ball on downs. White ran back an Aggie punt to about mid-field. A penalty took the ball fifteen yards nearer the Connecticut goal. A series of end runs and shift formation plays swept the Aggies back to their five yard line. From there Deloria on a delayed line buck, plunged across for the first score. The try for point failed, Connecticut chose to kick off. The Varsity advanced the ball to the middle of the field. Then Deloria threw one of his long passes. White and Noble collided in mid-air while jump-

BUILDING FUND PASSES QUARTER MILLION

Will Build and Endow Science Building.

Professor Henzell, in the absence of the president and at his request, announced at the chapel service on Sunday morning, the eleventh of November, that "a donor, who wishes for the time being to remain unnamed, has presented to the College the sum of $115,000. Of this, $85,000 will be devoted toward building new laboratories and $30,000 toward endowing the care of the same."

An effort, which the president anticipates will be almost if not wholly successful, is now being made to get the donors of the $57,000 already pledged towards a science building to transfer their gifts toward paying the current indebtedness of the College, which is of exactly this amount.

When this has been done, it will mean that slightly over a quarter of a million dollars will have been subscribed to the development of St. Stephen's during the past ninety days.

It is perhaps interesting at this time to note what sums have been given to us since the college was re-founded four years ago. They are: for the gymnasium, $70,000; for new laboratory equipment, $8,000; for new books, $11,500; for new water supply, $6,000; from campaign fund, cash and good pledges, $380,000; this autumn, $252,000; total $727,500. This three-quarters of a million or near it, has not included current expense deficits nor ordinary repairs and improvements.

Of the total amount needed, according to the president's estimates of this fall, which were adopted by the Board of Trustees, there still remains $12,000 to be subscribed, and every effort is being made to get this underwritten before Christmas.

MUSHROOMS VS. JUGGERNAUT

As might have been expected, and as probably it did expect, the National Student Forum has brought down wrath upon its head. It has been baying to see the moon's obverse, and has succeeded in disturbing the peace of the American Defense Society, Incorporated. The galloping typewriters of Things as They Are are giving chase, and the results will be interesting to watch. A mimeographed folio in Brisbane's best rhetorical manner has been put out; its aim is to prove that the National Student Forum plans to convert our college youth to loose living, communism and Moscow. It flatters the malcontents. Last spring we investigated their activities, and received an impression which has been strengthened by recent disclosures. Their mental processes are not neat. By an effort of imagination they have convinced themselves that criticism of the present social order is a plant which will not grow naturally in the soil of the American college campus. They have therefore set about to nurse rebellion under glass.

The present trouble all started when the Forum began to fraternize with the German Weltjugendliga, brought six of its advocates here for a year, and sent six American students to Germany in return. The step, enthusiastic in its conception, was poorly advised, for the whole German Youth Movement has for some time been discredited throughout Europe. This disrepute has arisen not because of objectionable practices, but because its beliefs, like those of the Forum, are akin to the nebulae. Its primary failings are an inclination towards the mentally inexact, and a dislike for applied studious effort.

Some of us have not studied the German Youths upon their native heath; but last summer we saw numbers of representatives of the Wandervogel—the Movement's international walking club—as they begged their ways through northern Italy. Long haired, under developed, guide book in hand, and smoked herring in pocket, they did not look capable of converting American young men and maids to vicious social practices, as the investigators seem to fear they might. Any attempt at active co-operation with them would be bound to die away after the first enthusiasms had found their ways into print; a perusal of the New Student would show this now, to a reader of its recent issues. The Defense Society could have accomplished more in some other direction. The best way to cultivate mushrooms is to roll the soil in which they grow. Precarious causes thrive best under opposition, and no doubt the activities of the Student Forum will spring up again behind the roller, and expand for a time in the sunshine of martyrdom.

BROMBERG AGAIN PLEASES AUDIENCE

On Monday evening, November 5, Edward Bromberg the noted Russian basso gave a public recital in the Memorial Gymnasium. The first part of the program consisted of Russian folk songs, the first of which was arranged by Mr. Bromberg himself. He prefaced each number with a short description of its significance. The second group was composed of two Polish songs, and the last of modern works by various composers.

Mr. Bromberg and his wife, who accompanied him, were at the college two years ago and gave then a program made up entirely of Russian music. Of the two arrangements the former was more successful. Mr. Bromberg's voice is peculiarly suited to the folk song, and it is there that he feels most at home. Again with the possible exception of the "Spring Song," the musical value of the other numbers sung was so inferior to the folk songs that the end of the recital came as a definite anti-climax. However, Mr. Bromberg was kind enough to repeat, as encores, two of the Russian songs; the applause left no undecided opinion as to the appreciation of the student.

The program follows:

Volga Boatman's Song,
Enslave Me Not,
Harvest Song,

Russian Folk Songs
National Hymn of Old Russia..Lwoff
National Hymn of New Russia,
Gretcheninoff
Spring Song Chopin
"Oh, Hop Vine" Polish Folk Song

ing for the ball which, grazing the fingertips of two Aggie backs who vainly tried to knock it down, settled into White's arms. The latter, keeping his feet in spite of Noble's impact, raced twenty yards for a touchdown. Again the try for point failed. Simmonds' kick-off went over Connecticut's goal line. The Aggies punted. The Varsity brought the ball back to the Aggie's five yard line where a pass, after being knocked about in the air by two Connecticut men, was caught behind their goal line by Coffin for a third touchdown, which the officials refused to allow. It was called a touch back and the ball was given to Connecticut on their twenty yard line. Here the half ended. The score at the end of the second period: St. Stephen's 12. Connecticut 0.

Third Quarter

Simmonds kicked off to open the second half, the ball see-sawed back and forth near mid-field until Connecticut punted over the Varsity's goal line. White's return punt was run back ten yards. Connecticut then worked the ball to within striking distance of the goal, but a grounded pass then gave it to the Varsity. White soon punted far down the field out of danger. Gruver blocked a punt which the Aggies recovered for a fifteen yard loss. It was Connecticut's ball on their forty-five yard line when the period ended. Score at the end of the third period: St. Stephen's 12. Connecticut 0.

Fourth Quarter

Connecticut rushed the ball to the Varsity's thirty yard line. A twenty-five yard pass was completed, putting the ball on the five yard line. Here the line, fighting hard, threw back three successive rushes that failed to gain an inch; but on the fourth down a short pass over the line gave Connecticut their only score. The try for point was blocked. The Varsity received, the ball going out of bounds at the fifteen yard line. White punted. Gruver intercepted a forward on his own thirty yard line, and again White punted. Wilson, down fast under the kick, tackled the Aggie back the minute he touched the ball, but in so doing he hurt his shoulder badly and had to leave the game. Coffin moved out from guard to end, Smith moved into Coffin's guard and Harrison went in at tackle. This was the only substitution on the Varsity made during the game. Connecticut made a first down but lost the ball when White intercepted a pass. The Varsity had the ball on its own forty yard line when the game ended. Final score St. Stephen's 12. Connecticut 6.

Drexel Trounced

Varsity Hands 37-0 to Philadelphia College

Drexel Institute of Philadelphia brought a confident and fairly heavy team to Poughkeepsie on November 3, and was beaten by the Varsity by the score of 37-0. The visitors were completely outclassed, and at no time during the game did they threaten. Opening up an attack which was even steadier than that shown against Worcester on the preceding Saturday, the Varsity scored six touchdowns; two by the forwarding passing route, two on line bucks, and one after a long end run and one as a result of a blocked punt. The linemen put up the usual stubborn defense, breaking through and stopping the play before they could be started. Only one first down was made against the Varsity, and for the third consecutive game its goal line was uncrossed.

The game started when Captain White lost the toss and Drexel kicked off. The Varsity carried the ball down to Drexel's thirty yard line, where a pass to Wilson followed by a pretty run resulted in the first touchdown. Murry made the extra point by a placed kick. Shortly after Drexel's second kick off Wilson, hooking a short pass from Deloria, raced for sixty yards until he was downed by Castner on Drexel's five yard line. On the next play Deloria took the ball over for the second touchdown. In the second period a third touchdown was scored when, after the ball was carried within striking distance by end runs and off-tackle dashes, a short pass to Wilson took the ball over.

The Varsity opened the second half by kicking off, the ball travelling nearly to Drexel's goal line. The visitors punt out was blocked by Jones, and Coffin recovered the ball on Drexel's five yard line. Deloria bucked the line for the distance for a touchdown. Smith ran back Drexel's kick off twenty-five yards. A forward pass to Captain White, and a thirty yard run by him, resulted in the fifth touchdown of the game. The Varsity's final score came when Gruver picked up the ball after an attempted Drexel punt had been blocked, and ran five yards for the goal line.

The game, the first which the Varsity has played at home this year, took place at the Red Sox Baseball Park. It is hoped that subsequent contests to be held in Poughkeepsie will be watched by more people, as only a small crowd viewed the Drexel game. If the college is to play home games in Poughkeepsie, people of that city must back us up; otherwise they will lose much that they stand to gain from having intercollegiate attractions.

Scrubs TieRaymond Riordan*FIGHT UP-HILL TO 7-7 SCORE

As a satisfactory climax to a season rather less disappointing than usual, the second team scored a timely touchdown in the last minute of its play against the Raymond Riordan veterans, on the home field, November 10. The scrubs gave tangible evidence that they have at last developed offensive tactics, and that too in a short time; for in the recent encounters with Newburgh and Kingston no such style of play was exhibited by them. The improvement seems to have resulted from the acquisition of Millington, a far-passer, and from the mastering of several fake plays, which proved to be steady ground-gainers.

The visitors kicked off at the beginning of the first quarter, and immediately held for downs on the Crimson thirty-five yard line. Thereupon the opposition, by a series of straight line plunges, quickly shoved the ball over the line, and gained the extra point by a pretty placement kick from the mighty shoe of Fisher. So easily did they pierce the second team's defence that a field day seemed imminent for the green jerseys; but the scrubs managed to prevent further scoring during the remainder of the half, aided in no small degree by numerous fumbles on the part of the opposition.

The third quarter witnessed the proverbial turning of the worm; (roll your own). After several minutes of ineffectual play Millington, in mid-field, netted twenty-five yards by a clean pass to Kunkle. Here three successive fake plays through guard brought the ball to within a foot of the opposing goal; but the Highlanders held firmly, and kicked the elusive spheroid out of danger. With the game almost at an end, Millington made another long pass to Kunkle, and brought the ball again to within scoring distance. This time the Crimson was not to be denied, and Richey bowled over four opposing beef eaters as he drove through center for a touchdown. He also dropped-kicked for the extra point, which he made with not an inch to spare.

Raymon Riordan received, and was in the midst of a second march down the field when Walsh whistled the game to a 7-7 tie.

The contest was marred by a tendency towards foul tactics on the part of the opposing team, which cost them one penalty, and several times threatened to lead to an exchange of taps upon the wrist. Apart from this blot both teams played hard and well. Richey, Kunkle, and Millington starred for St. Stephen's; while Captain Fisher did the best work for Raymond Riordan, not only by remarkable kicking and fast running, but also by the soothing methods which he used to calm his enraged cohorts.

Dogma Barren Unless Used Says Dr. Barry

URGES PRACTICE OF COMMUNION OF SAINTS

The Reverend J. G. H. Barry, Rector of the church of St. Mary The Virgin, New York, and one of the most popular of visiting preachers here, delivered in the Chapel on Sunday, November 4 a sermon urging the practice of the doctrine which we hold of the Communion of Saints, but which is at present neglected in our branch of the Church. Without mincing terms or evading issues through fear of giving offense, Dr. Barry called for Churchmen to live up to the doctrines which they profess to believe; and in particular the doctrine repeated by every Churchman at every service of the Church, "I believe in the Communion of the Saints."

Any dogma is barren, said Father Barry, unless it is used. Professed creeds are no good unless they energize one's life. It is a well known fact that a man may come to church and say he believes in God, and then go out of church and live just as though there were no God. Such a man does not really believe. Belief is shown by action. A few generations ago the formularies of the Mass were just as they are to-day, but the peoples' belief about the Mass was not the same, as was evidenced by laxity in its use.

Any Christian dogma is practically inexhaustible in its content, Father Barry declared. We should strive to draw out all that a dogma contains. We want no "simple Gospel," but something with more content,—something richer.

Applying this reasoning to the doctrine of the Communion of the Saints, he declared it to be a storehouse of spiritual energy, with a great deal in it to be drawn out and used if we will. The concept of the Christian Church is a concept of all who have ever been Christians, and embraces the dead as well as the living. Christians are all one body in Christ, he said and none is independent of another. It is therefore our business, he concluded, to aid the blessed dead by our prayers, and to call on them for their intercessions in our behalf.

Willard Fall Tennis Champion

TITUS AND FERRIS TAKE THE DOUBLES

Lawson Willard, playing probably the best game of his career, romped over Titus 8-6, 6-3, 6-2, and won the fall singles tennis tournament, November 1. He not only displayed quick head work in his difficult placements, but also used his steel racquet to great advantage in his constant drives at his plucky opponent's weakening backhand. Damp cloudy weather made speedy tennis difficult, but did not seem to deter Willard in his dashes to the net. The champion's path to victory was several times obstructed early in the Tournament; Dr. Wilson extended him to three sets and Ferris pluckily held him to 6-4, 16-14 in the semi-finals.

The doubles easily went to Titus and Ferris, for the second time doubles champions of St. Stephen's. First they quickly overcame Powers and Willard in the semi-finals, and then with brilliant teamwork they drove Andrews and Richey from the court in three straight sets, all 6-4.

The tournament concluded the fall tennis practice, and everything is in readiness for a successful 1924 season. Most of the Varsity men are back, and an excellent schedule including Hamilton and Poughkeepsie, is already arranged.
