DR. ERSKINE LECTURES ON "THE POETIC LIFE"

On the evening of October 5th, in the Memorial Gymnasium, Dr. John Erskine, noted critic, and Professor of English at Columbia University delivered what is generally thought to have been one of the best lectures ever given under the auspices of the Dragon Club.

The context of the lecture follows:

Life is not primarily scientific or religious, it is primarily poetic. The idea is current that science is fixed in content, that only in this field is one able to find the closest approach to absolute knowledge. But this is at best a mere delusion. Years ago parallel lines did not meet. Today science holds that they meet in infinity.

Religion is conceived of in the same sense. Jehovah was not perfect in the beginning. As time went on his attributes changed. His nature became more dignified, more just, and with the influence of each subsequent prophet, more perfect. So also does religion change.

The whole process of change was brilliantly illustrated by the prism. Life seen through it seems to be real. The personality of persons seem to be constant. Then turn the prism. What do you see? Everything changes. To quote Dr. Erskine's own words, "I think that life is constant, that human nature is constant. But life living here at the present time changes all the time." It is the vital energy streaming through us that brings diversified phenomena.

Man has come to the realization that nature is producing various manifestations of life: What is the result? Man has developed an impulse to fix experiences. Man tends to mark these experiences for all time. This is the poetic side of life. It makes life more intelligent and much sweeter. But from this develops a danger. Man comes to think that there is something final or fatal about these experiences. Institutions, Colleges, various sciences will grow up from them. But this is no reason to believe that they must always continue to exist.

Most men are willing to believe in evolution up to themselves. It is hard to think that after a while the material side of life at the present time must give way to something else. The geniuses of ancient times recognized this side of life. The literature of the Greeks reveals that life is a delusion. Only a projected view is obtained. It is only an opinion of the actuality. What then was more natural to follow than the idea

Varsity Drops Two Games

Trips to New York City Unsuccessful; Heavy N. Y. U. Team Wins; C. C. N. Y. Defeats Crimson.

Tom Thorp's Violet eleven, the best team that has represented New York University in several years, defeated the Crimson varsity by the score of 19-0 on Ohio Field, Saturday, October 11th.

St. Stephen's won the toss and chose to kick. The New Yorkers advanced the ball to the thirty-five yard line and commenced a series of line plays for a first down. The Crimson line stiffened, however, and Holden punted far into the St. Stephen's territory. It was as though the signal had been given for a punting duel. Throughout the quarter neither team gained sufficient ground to gain a first down. The defensive work of each eleven was admirable in its execution.

For the greater part of the second quarter the ball remained in the center zone. In the last few minutes of the half the first break of the game occurred when, upon failure to open a thoroughfare through the violet line, Noble kicked for forty yards and the ball was run back by Hawes to the St. Stephen's twenty-eight yard line. New York University then began a smashing series of criss-crosses and off-tackle plays. Two first downs resulted and then one more play put the ball on the one-yard line. The Crimson line crouched low and the next offensive piled up in the center of the line. When the referee had sifted through to the bottom of the heap, it was discovered that the ball was in possession of a St. Stephen's forward. Noble again punted, but his kick was hurried and the ball skimmed low for twenty yards and struck the ground out of bounds. A stubborn attack was begun by the violet and against a stiff resistance they advanced to the one-yard line. On the following play Holden plunged into the Crimson defensive and scored the first touchdown. Frank Howley kicked the goal. A few moments later the half ended with the ball in New York University's possession.

The third period opened with a snappy succession of plays by the St. Stephen's eleven, but no leaky spot could be found in the Violet line. Punting by both teams was resumed until, with the ball in N. Y. U.'s possession, Holden placed the ball on St. Stephen's twenty-five yard line. Hawes gave Holden the ball, he shot off tackle, eluded the Crimson secondary defense and scored the second touchdown. The try for the point after touchdown was blocked by Harrison.

In the last quarter a pass, Noble to Murry, gave St. Stephen's twenty-nine yards. The Violet line stiffened and Noble punted. Two plays by the Violet netted eight yards, but on the next play a 15-yard penalty was imposed. Holden kicked to the 10-yard line, St. Stephen's kicked and Bolden ran the ball back to the twenty yard line. A pass, Hawes to Politica, accounted for the third touchdown.

A word must be said of the admirable work of Captain Noble. He played defensive full back and his remarkable tackling accounted for the majority of the Violet losses. Sel-don has such an exhibition been staged.

BISHOP OF DIOCESE VISITS COLLEGE

Alumnus Preacher

On Sunday morning October 12, the Rt. Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, Bishop of the Diocese of New York, in which this college is located, and ex officio President of the Board of Trustees, visited the College and preached in the Chapel at the 10:30 Celebration of the Holy Eucharist. Taking as his text the seventh verse of the first chapter of the Second Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy; "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, of love, and a sound mind"; the Bishop expressed first his pleasure at being here, and emphasized the inadequacy of education without religion. "Life" he said, "cannot be lived without religion." Next he went on to consider what our religion as Christians and

UNRELATED COURSES

The last issue of the PROOF SHEET carried an editorial calling for the adoption of a comprehensive senior examination, and suggesting certain changes in the curriculum which might make the passing of such an examination reasonably possible.

It seems perfectly obvious that any courses on the contents of which we are not prepared, at the end of our residence here, to face a board of examiners, have been largely a waste of time; and it is quite as evident that few, if any, of us would care to put the matter to trial.

Thus far, the case is clear. But when we come to the question of what is to be done about it, there is, as usual, room for much discussion. It is not enough to say that the students should work harder: most of us have quite enough to do as it is. Nor is it at all certain that the adoption of the major and minor system, or the insistence on more required subjects, would be of much help. The make-up of our present curriculum is a fairly satisfactory working basis. It is with its administration that we have to quarrel.

The faculty has selected courses to form an interrelated whole. But very often the individual instructors have planned these courses as independent units. The reason is obvious. When the faculty asks a professor to offer a certain course, the natural tendency is for him to outline it with regard, not to a general education, but to a knowledge of the single subject. Certainly, none of us is going to specialize in all of the fields in which we study. Indeed, we claim that our curriculum is not designed for any specialization at all. Why not, then, modify our courses to conform with this principle? A man taking Biology I as preparation for advanced study needs a great deal of ground-work which is quite useless to anyone who will never go any further with the subject, but wishes to know enough about it to work in with his fund of general knowledge. To make the latter learn laboratory technique is not merely to impose an unnecessary hardship, but to deprive him of much of the value of the course. In the first place, it detracts from the time he should be able to put on the more important aspects of the science; in the second, it is apt to create a jumble of impression in which the mechanism of the paramcium assumes an importance equal to that of the theory of evolution.

ALUMNI NOTES

In the death of Dr. Samuel H. Brown, '81, on Monday, October 6th, the College lost one of its firm friends, a loyal Alumnus, a gentleman and a scholar. Dr. Brown, after graduation from St. Stephen's, studied medicine abroad for several years, and subsequently was a practicing physician in this neighborhood for over a quarter of a century, residing in Red Hook. His death was not unexpected, as he had been in ill health for over a year. A Requiem Mass for Dr. Brown was said by the President on Wednesday, October 8th. Dr. Bell also gave the blessing at the grave in the afternoon at the Lutheran Cemetery at Red Hook, where the burial service was conducted according to Masonic rite.

Recent issues of the "New York Times" and the "Living Church" announce the death of the Rev. Henry Chamberlaine, '80, a retired priest of the Diocese of New York, on Oct. 4th, after a long illness. Fr. Chamberlaine was the founder and first rector of St. Matthew's Church, West 84th St., New York. He was ordained deacon in 1883 and priest in the same year. His first work was as assistant at the Church of the Holy Communion, New York, and in 1885 he was put in charge of All Angel's Church. In 1887, he established St. Matthew's Church, now St. Matthew and St. Timothy's. He was afterwards associated with St. Johnland, Long Island, the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Chappaqua, and St. Luke's Church, Katonah, N. Y., and with St. James' Church, Port Deposit, Maryland.

The Rev. Lloyd S. Charters, '17, recently became Rector of Emmanuel Church, Norwich, N. Y.

The Rev. Donald H. Morse, '16, has assumed the rectorship of Christ Church, Schenectady, N. Y., with address at 970 State St.

Joseph O. Lowery, '17, is spending this year in Columbia University doing graduate work for his master's degree.

as members of the Holy Catholic Church ought to mean to us in our lives. This meaning is summed up in the text chosen today, namely, that strength, power and courage, which should make us the great guiding force and influence in our community and country. There are three primary secrets of strength. The first of these is honesty and sincerity, straightness and truth, in thought and in deed. "This is the foundation and very substance of manhood, of womanhood, and of religion." The really honest man is never insignificant. We must be real, with ourselves, our fellow men and our God. The second secret of power is clear convictions, and definite standards and principles of life. Some people are so open-minded that their minds seem to be open at both ends. We must, however, prove all things and hold fast to that which is good, above all faith in the Lord Christ. And the last secret of strength is faith,—simple, earnest, and sincere. By prayer, sacrament, and lives exemplifying it, our faith will lead to the free use of our minds combined with the spiritual convictions of devotion to Our Lord.

The Rt. Rev. Harry S. Longley, '91, Bishop-Coadjutor of Iowa, spoke on Sunday October the fifth on that religious education which is so vitally necessary in these jazz-crazy days. Everyone of importance in public life in America today, even bankers from Wall Street down, urge us to go to Church and not to forget spiritual values. Religious education should begin in the home, where God should reign supreme, and the family altar be raised again. But under present circumstances little can be expected from this quarter. Although being one of those who do not consider the Church School as the ultimate solution of this pressing problem of a child's knowledge of God, the Bishop nevertheless presented the duty of the Church to make its schools as technically equipped and efficiently taught as the public schools. In closing he called upon the young men of this College to further this vital work of the Church in every possible way, so that God may be known upon earth by the good deeds of men.

that one ought to enjoy the illusion while it lasted and hope for the best. This idea, or philosophy, as everyone knows, was wide-spread in classical times.

Because of the evolutionary trend in life, it is easy to see why the future may be of more interest than the past. On this point Dr. Erskine remarked, "I don't think our ancestors should be of any particular account to us. I think the future is of more importance." This point of view follows logically with the evolutionary bent of the lecture. If present ways of life are bound to change, and if our present knowledge to a great extent will not stand the strain of time, our interests are inevitably turned to the future. Life will be more varied then, and its manifestations greater.

The poetic impulse in its final sense is creative. The Greeks had this enlarged conception of poetry. A poet got something done. The Muses presided over literature, music and the like, fields of activities in which the greatest achievements of man were being accomplished. The Muses were interested in you because of your good works, and in the things you planned to do. All of us have an impulse to be poets from this point of view. Man has always wanted to know what the world consisted of. Vast amounts of knowledge has thus been collected. A vast amount of evidence has been massed together which emphatically denies the possibility of a future life. To use the lecturer's words, "An enormous quantity of poetry has been elaborated and now is stamped as absolute knowledge." All this has been done due to the poetic impulse of man to create something worth while.

Many persons fail to see the permeating tendency of the poet in us in this large sense. We ought to be glad to be alive and have a part in the endless change in this world. We can secure a tremendous amount of joy from it even when discouraged. If that be true, one easily becomes the artist in some form or other. Whatever man takes pleasure in doing, he will try to perpetuate for all time. If, however, no pleasure is found in life, nothing is done. The poetic impulse is lost. There will be no attempt to see life as it is at present and mark it for all time. Life will have lost its significance.

SECONDS WIN FROM POUGHKEEPSIE

On the fourth of October the second team celebrated the opening of the season by winning from its old rival, Poughkeepsie High School. Not only was the victory a well-earned reward for four years of stubborn fighting, but it gave excellent promise of future success. The score was 13-0, which is good enough. But that does not tell the whole story. The only thing that prevented a much higher total was the time necessary for a good defensive team to get used to attacking. In the first half the Seconds had everything but the final punch to put the ball across. In the second half they developed the punch.

The first score came in the third period, when Murry intercepted a forward pass by a pretty catch and ran forty yards for a touchdown. The try for goal failed. In the final quarter Patterson called for straight football and drove the team down the field on a series of short gains. Then on the fourth down, with four yards to go, he smashed through tackle and over the line. A pass to Stevens scored the extra point.

The line-up:

SCRUBS BRING HOME SECOND VICTORY

Roll Up Big Score On Middletown; Goal Still Intact.

Under a blazing sun and through clouds of dust, the second team pushed through the blue line of Middletown High School and, by a great victory gained revenge for past defeats. The team showed a very great improvement over the form it displayed against Poughkeepsie last Saturday.

The seconds kicked off, downed the Middletown runner on his fifteen yard line, and, by breaking through, scored a safety which the officials interpreted as a touchback. After several punts were exchanged, and as penalty of fifteen yards had been inflicted against the scrubs, Middletown had the ball on their own thirty yard line. Here Capt. Patterson recovered a fumble, and the gray team made a first down before the whistle blew ending the first period.

With the ball on the enemy's twenty yard line, Murry heaved a pretty pass from an open formation to Vandeventer, who scored the first touchdown. The try for point failed. Middletown received but lost the ball on downs. Passes by Murry to Patterson and Stolp advanced the ball to the enemy eight yard line. On the second down Stevens drove six yards for the second touchdown. Millington was unsuccessful in his attempted end run for the extra point. Score at the end of the first half: St. Stephen's Seconds, 12; Middletown 0.

After receiving the kickoff at the opening of the second half, Middletown was forced to punt. The scrub backs then tore through big holes in the line for four successive first downs. A short pass from Millington to Vandeventer brought the third score of the game. Stevens dove through center for the extra point. After the following kickoff, an intercepted pass gave the scrubs the ball on Middletown's fifteen yard line. Patterson went off tackle for the next touchdown, and a neat pass to Stolp produced the extra point. Again after the kickoff, Moser recovered a fumble. Millington and Stolp skirted the ends for thirty yards, while a pass to Stevens netted ten more. Stolp went through the line for a gain and Stevens smashed center for the fifth touchdown. The try for points failed. Neither team scored in the final period, though at times Middletown flashed a dangerous aerial offensive. Final score: S. S. C. Seconds 32; Middletown 0.

The Rev. F. H. Simmonds was appointed to act as Secretary pro tem.

The minutes of the 1923 meeting were read and approved.

It was resolved on motion that Messrs. Edward Lewis and O. F. Judd be nominated members of the Association.

The report of the Necrologist, Dean Treder, disclosed three losses by death during the past twelve months. The Rev. Dr. Upjohn, Class of 1863; Mr. Nelson P. Lewis, Class of 1873; and the Rev. H. B. Heald, Class of 1901, had all left gaps in our ranks that will be impossible to fill.

The Necrologist spoke feelingly of the life and work of each of these loyal alumni.

The President's report was read and accepted. On the motion of Dean Treder it was resolved that this report be embodied in the minutes and that the suggested action of the President be taken up under the head of new business.

The report is accordingly printed at the end of this account.

No report was made by the Treasurer, the Executive Committee, or the Committee of Trustees.

It was resolved, on motion, that the Committee on Amendments to the Constitution be continued, to report at the next meeting.

President Judd read the following letter from Arthur Rose, chairman of the Committee on Alumni Pictures: 79 Manhattan Ave., New York City June 9, 1924.

Report of the Committee on the College Memorial Pictures of the Alumni Association.

My dear Mr. President and Fellow Alumni:

I beg to report that your instruction to our committee to confer with President Bell and the Board of Trustees: "That it is the sense and preference of the Alumni Association that the pictures should stay in the dining hall, etc." This was done, last year, and the response of the Trustees was to the effect that the matter, being a domestic matter, be placed in the hands of President Bell. This report I sent to you last Commencement, owing to my inability to come, and this is the one, undoubtedly, which you heard.

As I am again unfortunate not to be able to reach you until afternoon on Commencement Day, thus missing the meeting, I may also add here, that the Class of 1924 has been asked to contribute their photos; but, like the Classes of 1922 and 1923, I have not heard a word from them.

This afternoon, when I arrive, we intend to check up and inspect the pictures, now housed in the gymnasium upper room.

Faithfully your,

The Memorial Pictures Committee,
(Signed) Arthur Rose, Chairman.

On motion, this report was ordered received and placed on file.

It was moved by the Rev. H. S. Smith that a letter be sent to the N. Y. at Lewisohn Stadium. After a slow game marred by many delays and times-out, the City College eleven, scoring most of its points as the results of its aerial attack, emerged victors, 26-7.

The Varsity, receiving the opening kick-off, which went over the goal line, put the ball in play on its twenty yard line. After gaining many yards for a first down, a Crimson back fumbled, C. C. N. Y. recovering. As the Varsity line held hard, City College attempted a field goal. The kick was blocked but City College recovered the ball, and, after several short stabs at the line, a completed forward put the ball on the Crimson one yard line, where three plays took it over. Plaut's drop kick for the extra point was good. The Varsity received and passed the rest of the quarter in a punting duel.

C. C. N. Y. scored again at the start of the second period when, after havnig worked the ball to the Varsity five yard line by a series of runs and passes, they rushed it over the goal. Try for point was blocked. A third City College score came at the close of the first half. With C. C. N. Y. holding the ball inside the Varsity's ten yard line, the team stiffened. City College's attempted field goal was blocked but again they recovered the ball and, a few plays later, drove off left tackle for a touchdown. The try for points was wide. The half ended soon after the subsequent kickoff.

In the third period a completed pass and a long run by Meisel gave City College their last score. During the remainder of the quarter the teams fought evenly in midfield. At the opening of the final period a pass to Harding followed by a good run netted the Varsity thirty yards. Another pass to Murry brought the ball to C. C. N. Y.'s two yard line, and in two smashes at the line Murry scored. Noble made the extra point by a place kick. City College opened up the game in a vain attempt to score again, but the teams played even ball for the rest of the time.
