Many Schools Visited By Admissions Director

Mr. Robert Herndon has already made many trips to the West and Midwest, including a visit to the University of Chicago, and the University of Michigan. He has spoken to students at several high schools, and has written several articles about the college for the Boston Globe.

Foreign Students

Mr. Herndon finds that most students who he meets at the college are interested in attending a foreign college. Many of them are interested in living in a foreign country, and would like to learn the language of that country. He would like to see the college develop a more comprehensive program to help foreign students.

Parent's Leadership Seen As Deficient

By Steve Snyder

On November 4 at the Columbia University Faculty Club there was a meeting of the New York area parents with Dr. Kline and three Bard students, Olivia Cohn, Ann Saurin Van Ophuijen and the writer. About 30 parents were present at the meeting.

Dr. Kline gave a resume of academic events at Bard, and spoke about the current developments in the college. He explained that the college is currently in a period of financial crisis, and that the parents should be aware of this. He also spoke about the future of the college, and the need for parents to support the institution.

Bard Delegates See Nehru

By Jock Blum

"If the world is to avoid disaster," said Mr. Nehru, "college students must break free of the cults of old. They must build a wide philosophy of life capable of coping with the complexity of modern technology." The President's statement was part of his keynote address in an Assembly of over 1500 college students, representing schools in 45 states. The two day assembly November 10 and 11 at New York's Commonwealth Hotel, was called at the special request of Mr. Nehru, and was arranged by the Bard College. During the assembly, Mr. Nehru said similar things in the past, Saturday's speech was the first one he aimed specifically at college students. Throughout the talks he stressed the need for students to develop a wide philosophy of life, stressing people to understand and help others.

"The Russians are very similar to Americans," he said. "If one is friendly, and both want to be friendly, and both want to be friends. Yet for both, qualities of thinking has not kept pace with the rapid strides in technology."

In a striking reversal of previous policy statements, the Indian Prime Minister said that he did not favor unilateral disarmament or that the United States States. He said that he could not support such disarmament because it would be politically unworkable, and that, disarmament would have to be approached from a more realistic point of view.

College Receives $10,000 Grant

By Debra Kline

The Dean of the College received a grant of $10,000 from the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Foundation. The grant will be used to develop an educational program which will allow students to study in China.

Business Office Answer Health Service Complaints

By Steve Hardy

Since Bard College has an essentially non-essential student body, it was almost impossible to imagine that there would be complaints registered against the campus. It appears that the students have been complaining about the inadequate service that medical service is not available twenty-four hours a day.

As a result of these complaints, the administration of the college changed its policy. Dr. A. B. Johnson, the dean of the college, said that the college would now be open for medical assistance twenty-four hours a day, and that the college would be responsible for the students' health needs.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it is clear that Bard College is facing a number of challenges. The college is in need of financial assistance, and the administration is working to improve the college's financial situation. The college is also facing challenges in terms of student safety, and the administration is working to address these issues. Overall, Bard College is a strong and vibrant institution that is committed to providing a quality education to its students.

Psychology Club Purposes Aired
By Marjory Erbmann
To communicate with one's fellow students and professors, one should have the opportunity to meet and exchange ideas and experiences. The Psychology Club has been formed to provide such an opportunity. The purpose of the club is to give students a chance to share their interests and to learn from each other. The club meets regularly to discuss various topics related to psychology.

State C D Rep. Plans Visit Here
The associate director of the Division of New York will visit the Bard campus this fall. He will confer with members of the Civil Defense committee. At a meeting of the committee, he will discuss the services of an outside source to conduct a study of the campus's emergency potential. If such an agency cannot be found, the committee will conduct its own survey.

A group of us were talking the other evening about what is really the inner significance of a college, that is, what it is that makes a college a distinctive institution, what is its real essence. Obviously there are numerous marks of a college that have validity. A college can be known as a place of research, or as a socially healthful place for people to spend the final years before they are forced into the vast world of adult living. It can be a place to meet desirable husbands or wives, a place to make contacts with an influential group in society, a place to acquire social graces, or vocational skills with which to earn a living. We could all name colleges in which one or more of these features appear paramount.

But it seems to me that all of them miss the central significance of a college. I feel that no other criteria compare with this: to feel that college be a place where illuminating teaching takes place and where significant learning occurs.

I think we can go further and say that everything that happens at college cannot be evaluated in terms of whether or not it contributes to learning. For example, do athletes give the relaxation and refreshment which can lead to learning? Can they improve the learning process, or become an end in themselves? Or can a college have the finest library on local history in its area and be comparatively irrelevant if it does not have the institutional teaching and learning organization?

All of this applies particularly to the administrative organization of a college, and specifically to the president. The president can provide or compromise in the performance of his own duties.
Opportunity to Live Abroad

By Eve Osborne

In early December, a representative will come to Bard from the Experiment office in Putney, Vermont. All students interested in the program will be able to meet with him. The four Bard students who have already participated in the Experiment will also meet with him: Marjory Ettel, Hol- land 1960; Nanci Feldman, Switz- erland 1961; Carol August and Eve Osborne, Switzerland, 1958-1960.

A reciprocal program of groups of foreign students spending the summer with families in the U.S.A. now must equal the program of American students going abroad; both involve about 1000 young people every year. The Experiment also arranges home visits for Fulbright and other foreign students who plan to send a full year to a foreign country. Guy Ducoret from France, who studied at Bard for a year on a Fulbright fel lowship came with an experiment group and spent a month with a family in New Hampshire before coming to Bard.

Winter Program

The structure of this year's Winter College and Field Per iod programs has evolved from four years of experimenting. Bard first initiated the two credit off campus independent study program in 1958-59. This was carried out as a substitute for the regular summer field period. Three years ago, 1959-60, Bard had its first Winter College. For the next two years students had a choice of four programs: winter college, off campus reading project (no credit), two-credit independent study project, and job project. Because the off campus credit study project was useless for webmail, because of the greater interest in the non-credit reading project, and was expensive, this alternative has been eliminated.

This year the students who have chosen to remain at Bard for winter college will be studying the Communist World of today. Courses tentatively offered this fall will be: Revolutionary Social Thought in Russia (Mr. DeGreg), Soviet Economic Development (Mr. Goetz), Soviet Politics (Mr. Fried), Psychology in the Soviet Union (Mr. Oja), and a two week introductory Historical Introduction to the Communist World (Mr. Liang). In addition, there will be an Expository Writing course (Mr. Bockman) and a Drama Workshop (Mr. Driver).

To help students job seeking for field period the Vocational Office, under the direction of Ms. Sweet, is open on Thursdays 2-4 p.m. and Fridays 9 a.m.-12 noon.

approved, or of his division and moderation board.
E.P.C. pointed out that the credits gained would be no more than eight, and would therefore be able to accelerate a student's program only half the time it would take an entire period. (This is not allowed, since the Field Period is meant for a variety of experience, and at least different jobs or kinds of project must be completed by a student.)

The value of academic experience was regarded by the Committee as good reason for the resinstatement of the independent study project for credit, as one alternative for the field period.

Other topics being considered by E.P.C. include a summer writing seminar (for new courses), a used-book exchange, and a plan for supplementary seminars to be led by advanced students (with the approval of the professor (coach) of the course).

undoubted recent statements made by President Kennedy on the subject. He urged each of the students at the conference to return to his home campus and explain, that despite increased international tension, disarmament was closer than ever before. He also asked them to create the necessary capital of public opinion to carry American proposal through Congress.

"Most people in the United States spend too much of their life thinking about war, and too little of it thinking about peace," Senator Clark said.

"To be sure, new weapons can be developed until a disarmament agreement can be reached, but the goal of disarmament must not be lost in the push to develop new weapons.

In the old days between meetings, students from various colleges exchanged political views, and discussed the climate of opinion on their home universities. Students frequently mentioned that right wing, John Birch type organizations found little support. Surprisingly, this comment came from schools all over the country, though the loud noises heard about the "conservative revi-olution." Barr was represented by Ray Mellet, Richard Meyer, Richard Mezrow, Jack Blum, Spence Layman, and Jack Kenney. Eva Osztore joined the delegation for the Nehru speech.

The delegation faced many technical difficulties at registration, and at the meetings.
Spokesmen for the CCUN said that they had planned the conference for about 400 students, and were completely unprecipitated with the last minute flood of delegations from across the country, and this accounted for the difficulties.

Soccer Squad Completes Victorious Season; Ties Oneonta in Last Game

Coach Patrick’s undefeated soccer team kept its record intact by playing both Orange County and Rockland County to 1-1 ties. The team’s near-perfect mark, achieved in Bard’s first year of team competition, won a motion of congratulations from Council.

The season ended with Rockland driving unchecked for the goal, to be stopped only by the fearless horn blast of the timekeeper Ralph Levine. The second 3-minute overtime period thus ended without a score, as did the first.

Rockland had many chances to go ahead in the game, played at home on Saturday, November 4. But Bard’s resplendent array of fullbacks, Spencer Layman, Bob Morrow, Hatch Telfry, and Lane Barsuhn, broke up most of the Rockland plays, and goalie Charles Hollander thwarted the surburbanites’ other attempts for a second goal.

The first half was scoreless, despite several vigorous efforts by an offense, led by center half Chris Willett and right inside forward Peter Echaustier, team captain.

Rockland broke the ice early in the third period with a goal from ten yards out. The Bar-

Basketball Team Srimages In Preparation for 1961-62 Season

The 1961 Bard Basketball team has begun practice for the coming season. Coach Patrick feels this could be one of the strongest teams Bard has ever had. The average height of the players this year is well above that of last year.

The team has had four practice games so far with Red Hook and Kingston players. Bard won two of the contests. Coach Patrick is working to strengthen the defensive play, which he sees as the present weak spot.

The members of the team are: Ted Berry, Bob Epstein, Fred Feldman, Gary Garbis, Bob Knight, Connie Mahoney, Stan Rechel, Sage Walcott, Eric Werthein, and Chris Willett.

Ray Hilton and Steve Foste are the managers, and Mr. Oja is the assistant manager. The schedule as of now is:
