Jazzfest

An annual gathering of jazz-loving alumni/ae musicians. This year, Jazzfest is honoring the memory of Richard Gordon, beloved professor at Bard for over three decades. He was a presence at Commencement weekend jazz activities for as long as they've been around. His extraordinary piano performances, with resonances of Thelonious Monk, Stevie Wonder, jazz standards, and popular songs, fill our memories. His warmth, kindness, intelligence, and generosity filled our hearts. Sharing his music was a joy for him and all who were with him. Everyone is welcome.

Campus Exhibitions

Critical Collage: Janet Malcolm

"Why are your collages art and mine not?" Janet Malcolm: Critical Collage presents the first institutional exhibition of the artist's extensive work in collage. Best known as a critic for The New Yorker—where she wrote for over fifty years—and the author of Psychoanalysis: The Impossible Profession (1977) and The Silent Woman: Sylvia Plath and Ted Hughes (1994), amongst many other books, Malcolm was also an avid collagist who made work out of a range of papers that process and reorganize themes in her writing, and which also point to the artist's personal history. Organized by Ana Sokolovska '25, with faculty supervision by professor Alex Kitnick.

Center for Curatorial Studies Spring 2025 Exhibition: 15

The exhibitions on display, curated by 15 MA candidates at the Center for Curatorial Studies, Bard College (CCS Bard), are the culmination of two years of research, writing, and conversation. The projects span from painting to video to site-specific commissions; from exhibitions that grapple with contemporary conditions to those that mine the past; and from explorations of digital dystopias to those of underrepresented archives.
